Enemy kills AF general in plane

SAIGON (AP)—The Deputy commander of the U.S. 7th Air Force was killed Tuesday when his reconnaissance plane was shot down by enemy ground fire only 17 days before he was to leave South Vietnam.

Maj. Gen. Robert F. Worley, 48, was the third general killed in action in the war. He was directly in charge of the huge armada of Air Force planes bombing North and South Vietnam since the reassignment last week of the commander, Maj. Gen. William W. Mortimer.

Worley's death came as heavy ground fighting erupted in the northern and central provinces, coupled with fresh intelligence reports that a third enemy offensive might begin in August.

An Air Force spokesman said Worley was piloting an RF4C, a Phantom fighter-bomber converted for photo reconnaissance, when it was hit by enemy guns 65 miles northwest of Da Nang.

"The second pilot in the aircraft ejected safely and was rescued," said the spokesman.

The plane crashed along the "Street Without Joy" on South Vietnam's coast, the same area where Maj. Gen. Bruno A. Hochmuth, commander of the U.S. 3rd Marine Division, was killed last Nov. 14 when his helicopter exploded during an inspection tour.

Another Air Force general, Maj. Gen. William J. Crumm, 48, commander of the Strategic Air Command's 3rd Division based on Guam, was the first general officer killed in the Vietnam war. He died July 7, 1967, when two B52 Stratofortresses on the way to bomb targets in South Vietnam collided and crashed in the South China Sea.

Worley was to return Aug. 9 to his wife and five children in Palm Desert, Calif., before becoming deputy chief of staff for operations in the Pacific Air Forces headquarters in Honolulu. A World War II fighter pilot with 120 combat missions in the European and Pacific theaters, he had been vice commander of the 7th Air Force for a year.

Ninety miles south of the crash site, infantrymen of the U.S. Americal Division killed 60 of the enemy in heavy fighting with a strong enemy force in the central lowlands. American casualties were not disclosed.

"We need an armored vehicle down here," a policeman yelled into the radio. Officers called for heavier weapons — high-powered rifles, tear gas and protective shields.

"They're out in the open... if it's necessary to get the National Guard out here, let's get them!" another police call said.

Police seek reasons for killings

SAN LUIS OBISPO (AP) — Police hunted reasons Tuesday for the seemingly senseless shooting of three New York vacationers on a sidewalk here Monday night. Two were killed.

A stubby faced suspect was arrested within five minutes after a man broke into a sporting goods store, grabbed a pistol and shot the three Yorkers, N.Y., residents.

Killed were August Marsala, 46, and Victor E. Cricco, 52. Marsala's wife, Evelyn, 44, was shot in the chest and her left wrist was broken by a bullet. She was reported in fair condition in Sierra Vista Hospital.

Arrested was a man identified by police as William B. Duff, 37, of Havre De Grace, Md. He was being held in the psychiatric ward of San Luis Obispo General Hospital as police sought to verify his identity.

He was booked on suspicion of murder.

Three Arab commandos force down Israeli plane in Algiers

PARIS (AP) — A passenger of a hijacked Israeli airliner that was forced down in Algiers Tuesday by Arab commandos said one of the hijackers tasted a drop of blood of an injured crewman and said, "It's good, the blood of Israelis."

The passenger, Don d'Allessandro, an Italian priest, was one of 20 non-Israelis released by Algeria and flown to Paris later in the day. The Israeli El Al Boeing 707, seized on an early morning flight from Rome to Tel Aviv, carried 38 passengers and 10 or 11 crewmen. The crewmen and 15 Israeli passengers were not allowed to leave Algiers.

The other three passengers aboard were the hijackers, the airline's office said.

In Tel Aviv, Israeli Prime Minister Levi Eshkol called the hijacking "highway robbery" and asserted Egypt "must assume some of the responsibility." He claimed the commandos' headquarters is in Cairo.

The Algerian government, which held the $6 million jettison, backed but did not participate in the Arab fight against Israel in the war of June 5-10, 1967.

A Danish passenger said in Paris that one of the hijackers had taken over the controls himself and brought the plane down in Algiers to a good landing, but the story conflicted with an Algerian press account that the hijackers' role was only to radio Algiers for landing instructions.

The nearest yet to an official report on the incident, the statement of the Algerian press service, said the copilot of the flight was injured by one of the three hijackers. After that, all the crew members followed the armed men's instructions, it added.

The copilot's injury was reported minor. Father d'Allessandro said that when the injured crewman was brought from the cockpit to the rear of the plane, drops of blood fell on some tableware. The priest said one of the gunmen wiped his finger across one drop of blood, touched it to his tongue and then remarked: "It's good, the blood of Israelis."

The priest added that he and two other priests showed their pectoral crosses and medals and this won them kind treatment. One hijacker, however, told them, "If you are Catholic priests you had better pray."

An Arab guerrilla organization, the Front for the Liberation of Palestine, said in Beirut that one of its units did the hijacking. They aped hijackers who landed 13 U.S. planes in Havana this year.

Two Americans were among the passengers. One was Rina Uziel, 23, of Brooklyn, N.Y. The other was Gabriel Gaiz, 17, a student from Long Beach, Calif.

Fortas to return to hearings

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Senate committee asked Abe Fortas to return for renewed hearings on his nomination as chief justice after a Southern foe brandished magazines filled with nude photographs Tuesday in charging Fortas' court rulings have encouraged obscenity.

The move threatened to delay a Judiciary Committee vote on Fortas until after Labor Day and could imperil his prospects for confirmation by the Senate in the face of the filibuster already planned.

Fortas finished four days of testimony last Friday.

Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., asked that Fortas be invited back as he displayed three magazines filled with graphic photographs of nude men and women in suggestive poses. Thurmond lashed out at recent Supreme Court rulings overturning obscenity convictions.

Sen. James O. Eastland, D-Miss., the committee chairman, agreed to invite Fortas to return.

Fortas' foes are expected to take advantage of Senate protocol for a one-week delay in any vote.

Rocky sees chances best

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Gov. Ronald Reagan of California said Tuesday that some "rather sizeable movements" have sprung up, designed to make him a Republican candidate for president. He repeated that he has not solicited specific delegate support.

Earlier, New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller said, "I am the one who has the best chance by far of winning the presidency." He said neither Reagan nor Nixon, the front-runners, would win as things now stand.

Logistic exercises underway

MOSCOW (AP)—Russian army maneuvers in western territory of the Soviet Union put fresh pressure Tuesday behind the Kremlin's demand for a halt in Czechoslovakia's liberalization movement.

The Defense Ministry announced military logistic exercises are under way in western parts of the Ukraine, which borders on Czechoslovakia, and in White Russia, Latvia and the Russian Federation. It said they will continue until Aug. 10.

"The questions of organization of rear area services, supply of troops, maintenance of military hardware, and others, are being worked out," the Defense Ministry said in a statement published by the government newspaper Izvestia. "Logistics administrations of military districts and troops are taking part in the exercises and reserves and civilian motor vehicles are involved," the statement added.

The announcement gave no explanation for the timing or location of the maneuvers. But it followed up arrangements for the Soviet Communist party Politburo to meet with the Czechoslovak party presidium at some point in Czechoslovakia for a discussion of the crisis.

Rumors in the Soviet capital said party chief Leonid I. Brezhnev left Tuesday for Czechoslovakia. The Yugoslav news agency Tanjug reported his departure outright. There was no official confirmation available, however.

The date and place of the meeting were not announced.

Senate may restore P.O. cuts

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Post Office Committee, meeting in closed session Tuesday, adopted a measure to exempt the Post Office Department from the planned cutback in federal employment.

Postmaster General W. Marvin Watson said the "understanding" shown by House and Senate committees "encourages us that the mail service may not have to be curtailed."

Under the rollback, the Post Office was scheduled to lose more than 80,000 of its 741,000 employees over a four-year period, while the volume of mail it must handle was predicted to increase by almost 10 billion pieces.

Watson testified Monday that unless Congress stepped in to help, the Post Office would have to eliminate Saturday mail delivery, refuse service to new homes, apartments and office buildings, and eventually close hundreds of small post offices.

Steel strike voted; top dollar is sought

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The United Steelworkers rank and file gave their bargainers a top-dollar mandate Tuesday to bring a top-dollar settlement out of the industry or call a strike Aug. 1.

At 600 union halls across the country and in Canada, thousands of men shouted their approval, or stood in unison, or marked a ballot "yes" when asked if they would walk out if no contract is signed.

Returns from 37 locals representing 96,967 steelworkers showed that less than 2 per cent were opposed.

More than 388,000 men who work for the nation's 11 largest steel companies, now trying to reach a new labor contract, were eligible to vote. But the pattern of overwhelming solidarity was established early.

By midafternoon, 24 locals with 64,348 members had reported results. Union leaders said less than 500 opposed a walkout, making it a better than 99 per cent vote to strike.

Actual turnout to vote were small, often a third or less of the local membership. Under union rules, no matter how the vote was taken, it embraced every member, present or not.

From Gary, Ind., with two of the union's biggest locals — No. 1014 with 13,000 men and No. 1117 with 12,000 — the vote was recorded as unanimous. Local 1117 said 1,000 attended its meeting.

Local 1440 at Pittsburg, Calif., the largest on the West Coast with 3,000 men, reported 1,150 for and just two against. Three Birmingham, Ala., locals recorded their 3,960 members totally in favor. Two Lackawanna, N.Y., locals with 9,200 members went on record as unanimous after two meetings of 600 men.

The next step apparently must come from industry if it is to prevent the ninth strike in the steelworkers' 32-year history. The last walkout, in 1959, lasted 116 days.

Rumors leaking from hotel meeting rooms and the steel company offices allege management is going to make its first solid money offer today or Thursday — after digesting the impact of the full strike vote.

Other sources, however, indicate an industry offer already is on the table, and that counter proposals are being awaited.

Whatever the true situation—

Local union votes strike

BETHLEHEM, Pa. AP — Four big United Steelworkers Union locals here voted overwhelmingly today to sanction a strike call by union negotiators unless a contract agreement is reached with the steel industry by Aug. 1.

The vote among the members of the four locals, with a membership of some 13,500, was near unanimous as the rank and file took both a standup and paper ballot vote.

Local 2598 voted 99.81 per cent in favor of a strike; Local 2599 99.99 per cent in favor of a walkout; Local 5349 99 per cent for strike action; and Local 2600 100 per cent for a work stoppage.

whether there's been an economic offer or not—in the waning eight days to the midnight, July 31 contract expiration it all boils down to how much money the men will get.

President Johnson, meantime, called on business and labor to keep the lid on price and wage increases "in our battle against inflation."

The President said from the Texas White House he was concerned, noting that 250 large labor contracts, including steel,

Snipers kill 4 in Cleveland

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Four persons, including three policemen, were killed and at least 10 other policemen were wounded Tuesday night when snipers using automatic weapons opened fire in a Negro area on Cleveland's East Side, officers said.

Spiral worries Johnson

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — President Johnson put in a new plea Tuesday for price and pay hold-downs, coupled with stepped-up efforts for economy in government.

Johnson also selected a new undersecretary of commerce and announced two nominations to the Interstate Commerce Commission.

This was in preparation for return to Washington Tuesday or today perhaps by way of Cincinnati to address the National Governors Conference.

The President noted in a statement that his Cabinet Committee on Price Stability has called for restraint by business and labor in price and wage decisions during what he called "an especially critical time in our battle against inflation."

"I want personally to underline their concern," he said.

More than 250 large labor contracts expire from August through December, Johnson said, and "there are key contracts to be settled in steel, aerospace, longshoring, coal mining, airlines and railroads."

The President said the new law to boost taxes by $10 billion and cut spending by $5 billion can't win the battle against inflation alone.

"Whether or not we re-establish noninflationary prosperity quickly and in an orderly way," he said, "depends on the decisions which the leaders of American labor and business will make in the coming months. All Americans are paying for the inflation-insurance that the tax bill provides. All Americans have a stake in the prosperity that we must protect."

And then in a message to members of 15 regional federal executive boards on cost reduction scattered through the nation, Johnson said, "Your country is depending on you to reduce expenditures by finding better and less costly ways to accomplish what we have to do."

Highways could use rail beds

HARRISBURG (AP) — The novel idea of relieving highway congestion by converting railroad track beds for both rail and motor use was considered here Tuesday in the first public hearing of a Senate investigating committee.

The plan, which sprung from a Senate resolution, is aimed specifically at diverting big trucks off the Pennsylvania Turnpike and other main arteries. It calls for filling in little-used railroad lines with asphalt so both trucks and trains could run on them.

But neither Sen. Albert R. Pechan (R-Armstrong), the committee chairman, nor an expert witness from the State Highways Department had a clue as to how engineers would go about such conversion.

Eric J. van Hausswolff, deputy secretary of highways for planning, said there would be what he called "geometric problems" involved.

Hausswolff said the department has had experience in paving abandoned tracks for motorized transport, and it is currently in contact with the Lehigh Valley Railroad in an attempt to obtain several of that railroad's abandoned right of ways.

"It's sinful to see this right of way lying around there and not being used," said Sen. Pechan.

The senator cited his own experience as a turnpike traveler to stress the hazards he said mammoth trucks pose to the defenseless motorist in his lighter vehicle.

The effect of allowing trucks and trains to run over the same routes, he said, would be to "alleviate the ever-increasing traffic congestion on our major highways."

The unique plan was endorsed by State Highways Secretary Robert G. Bartlett in a statement read by Hausswolff.

Clifford L. Jones, state secretary of commerce, told the committee he is "very interested in the project," but for different reasons than those suggested by the committee chairman. Jones said he would like to see abandoned rail spurs paved for use as access roads to new industrial developments.

"Once a spur line is abandoned, it is extremely difficult to renew that service," Jones said, referring to the number of abandoned tracks that have served no useful purpose since they were retired.

In addition to the engineering problems implied by the plan Pechan favors, the legal terms of track purchases by the state have yet to be confronted, the committee chairman said.

DAs can help consumers

HERSHHEY, Pa. (AP) — Consumer protection was the keynote of a conference here Tuesday of district attorneys from around the state.

Atty. Gen. William C. Sennett urged their support for consumer protection legislation now pending in the General Assembly. He said:

"You as district attorneys can be of tremendous service to Pennsylvanians by urging your representatives in the House and Senate to consider and adopt this legislative package as soon as they return in September."

Hoffa's trial appeal rejected

CINCINNATI (AP) — The 6th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals upheld Tuesday denial of a fourth motion for a new trial for Teamsters' Union President James R. Hoffa in the case in which he was convicted in 1964 on a jury tamper charge.

Hoffa was convicted in the U.S. District Court at Chattanooga, Tenn., and sentenced to eight years in prison. He now is in prison.

The court previously had denied the other three new trial motions.

State nears completion of interstate highways

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Some 1,039 miles of the 1,576-mile federal interstate highway system in Pennsylvania is complete and in service, according to the Pennsylvania Highways Department.

Construction is underway on 337 miles of the superhighway system in the state. Final design work is in progress on 139 miles, and hearings and preliminary engineering work is being done on the remaining 21 miles.

The Highways Department gave this breakdown:

Interstate routes completed and in service include 70 and 90, the Erie Thruway, and by-passes and spurs 176, the Reading Bypass; 276, linking 76 with Interstate 95 at Newportville; 676, part of the Schuylkill Expressway in Philadelphia and 80S, part of the Pennsylvania Turnpike, east of Pittsburgh.

Interstate 76, which encompasses the Pennsylvania Turnpike, the Penn Lincoln Parkway in the Pittsburgh area, and the Schuylkill Expressway, is virtually complete with all but two of its 306-miles in service.

Interstate 80, the Keystone Shortway, has 184 miles finished and 129 miles under construction.

Striking phone workers would equip convention

CHICAGO (AP) — Striking electrical workers and the Illinois Bell Telephone Co., agreed Tuesday on an emergency plan for installation of communications equipment for the Democratic National Convention scheduled to start Aug. 28.

Robert A. Nickey, chief spokesman for the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, met with ranking labor leaders and Mayor Richard J. Daley before announcing that the union would allow 300 volunteers from among its 11,000 strikers to enter the International Amphitheatre to install the elaborate communications systems.

Mayor Daley rushed to a telephone to relay the proposal to the telephone company and immediately told newsmen: "The company has accepted the offer."

"This in no way affects the general strike now in progress against Illinois Bell," Nickey said. IBEW members have been striking Bell since May 8.

Nickey added that the convention trade is confined to the Amphitheatre, South Side home of many national political meetings. "This will not be extended to hotels," he said.

The exclusion of hotels from the agreement poses difficulties for segments of the news media with temporary workrooms and offices in various hotels. News-men from these sites cover activities in delegates' and candidates' headquarters in downtown Chicago.

Nickey said he hoped union and Bell officials would meet later Tuesday to work out details for the work in the Amphitheatre. He added, "Our men will work around the clock if necessary to complete the work."

Charles Brown, vice president of operations at Bell, said, "Removing the convention issue from our collective bargaining dispute is a very constructive step."

Nickey said the 300 volunteers will work "with no individual compensation for themselves." He was asked if he could guarantee 300 volunteers. "We know our people," he replied.

Nickey added that picketing activity would be stepped up at Bell facilities exclusive of the Amphitheatre where members of other trade unions are working on convention facilities.

John Bailey, Democratic national chairman who arrived in Chicago Monday to observe the convention dilemma, said Tuesday, "I never lost confidence in Mayor Daley's ability to solve this problem."

There was speculation that Bailey was in Chicago to determine if the convention should be shifted to another city because of the labor deadlock which threatened full scale television coverage of the party's presidential nominating show.

More than $1.3 million has been spent for the convention. Chicago pledged $750,000 to the Democratic party and sweetened the pot with a $300,000 promise for miscellaneous expenses.

Anyone for half a station wagon?

Give or take a couple cubic feet, the VW Squareback Sedan will hold half as much as a big, $4,000 station wagon.

Which isn't half bad considering that big wagons usually run around half empty anyhow.

And although you can't roll a piano into the back of a Squareback, you can fold the rear seat down and slide in a couple of full-sized mattresses.

Or bring it back up again to carry full-sized people. Plus all their luggage.

There's also bonus storage space under the front hood. (You know, where everyone else stores their engine.)

So if you've been torn between the roominess of a big wagon and the costliness of it all, look at our Squareback this way:

One. It's much cheaper. $2349*

Two. It's more economical. (After all, it is a Volkswagen.)

And three. Half a wagon is better than none at all.

Raymond Andrews, Kresgeville, scans one of his most treasured possessions, a 120-year-old publication, in German, of American history. Andrews retired this summer after 47 years of teaching.

47 years, 'in the business'

West End educator retires

By FRED WALTER

Pocono Record Reporter
KRESGEVILLE — We cannot live in this world without humor.

Followers of English literature, especially of Shakespeare will recall the gross-bodied, humor maintaining character of Falstaff who brought much content and entertainment in three of his plays.

An immediate recognition will be made should you happen to meet and talk with a Raymond Andrews of Kresgeville.

Falstaff exercised a kind of fascination on the reader, as Andrews does to his listeners.

Falstaff is everything in little or rather everything in "much." Andrews may be likened to the latter but is much more than little among other "lots."

Andrews is less English than a Falstaff; more than that he is also "German" as he had educated himself to teach the language and the total culture to his students at former Polk Township High School and Pleasant Valley High School.

Beyond the humor, the robust and jovial personality, Andrews however becomes the opposite as he is also a veteran educator.

On June 10, 1968, Andrews "hung up the fiddle and the bow"; retiring from teaching, after some 47 years in the business and pleasure of it all; the years of learning and teaching, laughing and telling.

But Andrews is accustomed living life full time and "retirement" is just another word, which implies a "withdrawal from; a quiet way of living. There are too many interests there was too little time for before.

Kresgeville has been his home since February 7, 1903 where Andrews and his wife Edith still maintain the insurance office he started in 1945 to "make a little more money".

They needed teachers and some of us started early. I started at 17, teaching in the one room school houses: Snyder's School, at $50 a month, then Middle Creek School and the township school in Kresgeville.

"It took a long time for me to earn my masters and I finally got it at 35 from Bucknell. I worked for that. But I loved school right from the start, although I had thoughts to be a preacher too."

"Bei du jammer", Andrews would burst out frequently with a German accented exclamation: "My son got his first degree before I even got my masters."

After Wills School I spent each summer at the Normal School in East Stroudsburg, from 1921-1927.

I didn't go for the "method" approach and thought it important for a teacher to immerse himself in a subject thoroughly before teaching it.

Andrews did just that with his favorite subject "history" equalled only by teaching "German" and Latin. He seems to have absorbed the German personality and speaks with a definite aggressive emphasis noted in the language.

Not only has he mastered the elements for teaching the "school language of German" but Andrews will speak like a "landsman" in with natural mannerisms, with all the idioms or "sprichworte" so common among the people of the old country.

After further education at Albright College in Reading and finally graduating from Bucknell in 1936, Andrews started at the Polk Schoolhouse and then Pleasant Valley in 1938, teaching world, American and Pennsylvania history, local civics, besides two languages.

"I still keep the copies of my original teaching certificates and will have them photographed for permanent keepsake; a regional certificate, which was good for one year; a professional, good for three years and a standard which is good for life."

"El yei yei, the stories I could tell you about the things we did to the teachers and each other; but it was all in good healthy fun and none of this rock throwing, riot stuff."

"Oh, people have asked me why am I so fat and I tell them that it happened during the war when I got stuck with all the war rations when it all went to the 'front,' and Andrews exploded in another heartfelt sound of laughter.

Rich in remembrances, with a wealth of dated collected items of historic significance, Andrews is pursuing his interests in telling the story of the West End, the founding people and the communities and how they live today.

"I have kept a diary since 1936 and usually check things out with it after talking to people. But it will take time. There is so much to tell. There is a great deal of reading to be done, I already have copies made of some of the old photos which are now preserved more permanently, like an 1848 photo of the first Trachsville church and congregation."

"I will finally do some writing now. I used to do a lot of reporting until a few years ago for the local papers which my father and uncle had started in 1894 with the Monroe Democrat, the Daily Stroudsburg Times, the Daily Record and now The Pocono Record."

With these planned interests, his insurance business and teaching Sunday school, retirement will have no meaning to Andrews.

In the classroom, Andrews has always had room to air it out occasionally with a quick wisp of laughter.

The world cannot live without humor.

TAD employee receives award

TOBYHANNA — Miss Patricia O'Connell, of Tobyhanna, receptionist at Tobyhanna Army Depot, was commended this week in a letter to Depot Commander Col. Paul R. Poulin.

Written by H.R. Carrington, Executive director of the Defense Industrial Plant Equipment Center, Memphis, Tenn., the letter concerns a Center employee who was stricken severely ill while on assignment at the depot.

Miss O'Connell on advice of the depot's medical officer, arranged for his immediate return by plane to Tennessee, where he underwent major surgery. The attending physician reported that the rapid transfer of the patient prevented possible serious complications.

Program set for Newfoundland

NEWFOUNDLAND — America's leading Quaker, a former Rockette, and a Decca Recording artist-folk singer will be among the features of the fourth in Vacationland Ministries' series, "The World Church In Action", on July 28 at the Newfoundland Arts Center.

Dr. D. Elton Trueblood, an eighth generation Quaker in a direct line, will speak during the dramatic program at the Arts Center. A summer resident of Lake Paupac, Greentown, where he maintains a studio, "Pen Point" and where many of his twenty-five books have been written, Dr. Trueblood has been honored both in this country and abroad.

Holder of nine honorary degrees, he has served as Chairman of the Friends World Committee for Consultations; Clerk of Indiana Yearly Meeting of Friends; Chief of Religious Information for the U.S. Information Agency; and Advisor to the Voice of America.

Good weather in county

Heavy wheat crop expected

STROUDSBURG — Hot days and only local scattered showers during the past week provided good conditions for crop farming and field work, in Monroe County.

Among the activities, harvesting of the wheat crop seems to be the most important at this time. Combining has already started in the West End of Monroe County and the Crop Reporting Service said that one third of the state wheat crop was combined by the weekend.

The heavy long term rains, with sudden hot and dry spells, and occasional showers have induced a heavy stand of wheat and better than average yields are being reported by farmers. Average yield per acre for winter wheat last year was 36 bushels per acre. The recent flash storm also has knocked down the wheat stand but not seriously. Within the next week farmers will be taking advantage of any dry days to get the wheat harvested before any lengthy rainy spells.

Hay making is still a very active operation on some farms and in some areas second cuttings are being taken. Quality of the hay made last week was generally considered to be fair.

An average amount of feed is being obtained from pastures but a general rain is needed for growth to continue. Hot temperatures and dry top soils have slowed pasture growth and caused some meadows to turn brown.

The oat crop is ripening rapidly as the hot weather has speeded maturing. Generally the straw is of medium tall length and very little lodging has occurred. Some reports of harvest have been received from southern counties.

The growth of corn stands has also been pushed along rapidly with tasseling occurring in many fields in southern counties. Some cultivation of late corn was accomplished also during the week. Nearly all the corn is showing good color.

Spraying for weed and insect control was important the past week especially in corn and potato fields.

Soils dried rapidly and farmers with portable irrigation systems immediately made use of them on late potatoe fields and other vegetable crops. Good quality early sweet corn is already being harvested. Pea harvest is underway with reports of lush growth and good yields.

Nurses need financial help

Patients in hospitals throughout the nation may, someday wake up and find no nurses on duty. The reason? There just aren't any.

It is our opinion that Pennsylvania will have played a major role in the fact that nurses no longer find devotion to duty a suitable driving force to keep working. Salary has never been a stimulus.

Nurses are the most underpaid professional people in the United States and their future is no brighter than the past. In fact, it may be even darker.

The new darkness, at least for Pennsylvanians, stems from the knowledge that two factors have or will curtail the number of high school graduates entering the field of nursing.

The problem has grown in recent weeks because of the elimination of a state aid program for student nurses by the Shafer Administration and the apparent difficulty of student nurses to get scholarship assistance from the Pennsylvania Higher Education Assistance Agency.

The latest move by Shafer, as he halted a 20-year aid to student nurses, will undoubtedly be felt by student nurses and patients alike. Tuition rates may be increased and patient charges may be boosted.

There are 47,000 nurses working full or part-time, but there are also 30,000 on the "inactive" list for a number of reasons in Pennsylvania. The latter figure is alarming.

Approximately 5,000 girls go into nursing schools each year and currently there are about 11,000 studying for graduation. Of this number, only 808 students, or 7.3 per cent of the total, are receiving scholarships from the Pennsylvania Higher Education Assistance Agency.

Instead of doing all in its means to deflate the nursing profession, the state of Pennsylvania should be doing all in its power to assist a profession that has been forgotten through the years.

Wallace key to race

The quadricennial madness is upon us. Politics does not make conversation because what is one man's Mede is another man's Persian. It puts a new chill on an old friendship.

You can hear it on the golf course, in the office, under the dryer, at dinner, in a tavern, church or a bus. Everyone says: "How does it look?"

The man I watch with fascination lives at 1142 South Perry St., in Montgomery, Ala. He is, of course, George Corley Wallace—the poor man's Huey Long. Wallace is going to surprise a lot of people on election night. He won't win anything, and he knows it. But, if he can take 10 percent of the electoral vote — 54 votes — the ex-governor may decide who will be president.

He can do more than take 10 percent. Wallace can cut Nixon just enough in some states, like California, to dump the Golden Gate into Humphrey's lap. This man flies around in a seedy-looking DC-6 making one night stands. He's a demagogue out of the old Chautauque circuit, roaring invective through flashing teeth, dredging old venom from the bottom of hearts and asking one and all to spread the Wallace gospel.

Three votes America tends to forget that it has a Democratic vote, a Republican vote and a Hate vote. It is probable that one out of every 20 votes is cast against someone. To freeze them in one bloc, a candidate must be shrill in his opposition to such things as the United States Supreme Court, desegregation, spending, Vietnam, foreign aid, centralization of federal government and, conversely, heartily favor expansion of state's rights.

Five years ago, George Wallace came or the American scene almost timidly, as the newly elected governor of Alabama. He was forbidden by law from succeeding himself and, in 1965, successfully sponsored a subterfuge in running Mrs. Wallace as his successor. She died in office, but Wallace remains the biggest man in a politically unhappy state.

It was in Birmingham, on July 17, 1949 that the opponents of Harry Truman's civil rights program met in rump convention and nominated J. Strom Thurmond and Fielding L. Wright on a States' Rights ticket. Of 525 electoral votes, Thurmond got 39, seven and a half percent, although only 2.4 percent of the people voted for him.

In 1960, when Kennedy was running against Nixon, electors of the states of Alabama and Mississippi gave Harry F. Byrd 15 electoral votes although less than one percent of the people espoused his cause. The military are fond of using a word "polarized." It means to magnetize into a solid bloc. I would surmise that George Wallace has "polarized" those who oppose the Republican and Democratic parties.

If the nominees are to be Humphrey versus Nixon, Wallace is prepared to say that they could be placed on the same ticket — that the people are not being given a choice. The election does not have to be as close as the Kennedy-Nixon photo finish in 1960 for Wallace to become the balance of power.

He is almost certain to round up a majority of the conservative wing of the Republican Party — the 1964 Goldwater votes. If so, Wallace stands an excellent chance of nailing down Alabama's 10 votes; Georgia's 12; Mississippi's seven; Louisiana's 10; South Carolina's eight; and possibly, Florida's 14. (Goldwater lost Florida by 306,000 to 548,000.) That is 61 out of 538 votes.

No buying No one can buy the little man off. Ideologically, no one would approach him from either party. The damage he can do is not limited to electoral votes. The ex-governor is going to take a couple of million anti-administration votes which would go to the Republican nominee. Many will be in states where, if Wallace wasn't siphoning the cream from the top, the Republican Party could expect to win.

Ironically, on a recent trip east and midwest, I spoke to politicians from both major parties and they worry about Rockefeller and Eugene McCarthy. Or they wonder what happened to all those Bobby Kennedy people.

I asked what the politicians thought of that Alabama ambush called Wallace. Not much. Some shrugged. Some laughed. I'll see you in front of the television set at 3 a.m. election night.

Don MacLean

Poverty program fails

WASHINGTON — This nation's poverty programs, as well-intentioned as they may be, obviously have failed the poor. Otherwise, we should not have them demonstrating all summer here and beating on the doors of Congress — almost four years after the Office of Economic Opportunity was established.

Think of these programs, as administered by OEO — Health, Education and Welfare; Agriculture; Labor; and a host of other agencies — as a big funnel. The money, squeezed in ever greater amounts from a protesting public, goes in the top of the funnel. And there most of it stays.

It is paid in salaries to directors, assistant directors, deputy assistant directors, aides, superclerks; it is wasted on needless studies and ones which duplicate each other; some of it is stolen; it is spent on rent for fancy poverty headquarters buildings, plush meeting rooms, travel expenses for bigwigs, etc., etc.

What eventually comes out of the funnel and into the hands of the poor is but a trickle. By now some of our more astute citizens and even some of our politicians have realized what is going on and are seeking other solutions. One of these is the guaranteed income, sometimes called the negative income tax.

Certain of $3,000 Under this plan every person would be certain of having at least $3,000 (the figure most often mentioned) per year. That's not much, of course, but the idea is clear. The great brains running this country have finally discovered that poverty is, basically, a lack of money! This seems not to have occurred to them before. They thought what the poor needed were programs and promises.

An even better idea, but along the lines of the guaranteed income, is the national dividend plan, as developed by John H. Perry, Jr., the Florida publisher, and strongly endorsed by sociologists and serious economists. Perry's plan would take all corporate taxes away from the government and divide it up between every citizen on the voter registration rolls.

There would be virtually no money lost in the top of the funnel. Every person, rich or poor, would get the dividend (which could be as much as $1,000 per year). In addition to inspiring everyone to vote — a side benefit — this would make us all partners in business. No longer could people cry about being "unable to participate."

Corporate taxes, under the Perry plan, would be fixed at 50 per cent. This would give business incentive to build new plants, etc., thereby creating jobs the way they should be created, rather than artificially as the government is trying to do now. As business boomed, the national dividend would increase.

Unfortunately, politicians won't like Mr. Perry's plan for one simple reason: They prefer giveaway programs over which they have control. Power is useful in getting votes. Under the national dividend plan, the poor no longer would have to lick the hands of the bureaucrats who "take care of them."

Harris survey

Rockefeller gains against HHH not matched against McCarthy

By LOUIS HARRIS

Gov. Nelson Rockefeller has gained ground substantially on Vice President Hubert Humphrey in a three-way presidential contest with George Wallace. He has turned a four-point deficit as of mid-June into a three-point lead, 37-34 per cent, over Humphrey in mid-July. Wallace receives 15 per cent nationwide against a Rockefeller-Humphrey pairing.

Rockefeller's showing is more significant by dint of the fact that the New York governor wins by three over Humphrey while Richard Nixon, as reported Tuesday, loses by two to the same opponent.

The gains by Rockefeller against Humphrey, however, have not been matched against Sen. Eugene McCarthy. In June, McCarthy led Rockefeller by 41 to 35 per cent; today the senator holds his six-point spread, 38 to 32 per cent. McCarthy leads Nixon by eight, 42 to 34 per cent.

Part of the reason for the lack of relative movement in a Rockefeller-McCarthy race is that both men have been building their appeal to essentially the same groups in the electorate.

Not true story In 1968, national pairings do not begin to tell the political story in themselves. Basic to understanding the relative position between Rockefeller and Nixon is the surge of Wallace in this past month. In the south, the Wallace gains have placed both Nixon and Rockefeller in the position of running a poor third. Nixon's 11-point lead over Rockefeller in the south thus does not translate into votes in the electoral college in 1968.

The Wallace gains have recently cut heavily into the normally Democratic so-called "gut" vote in the north, among low-income whites and industrial workers. These Wallace incursions, mainly over the race issue, have cut down Humphrey's margin over Nixon and have put Humphrey behind Rockefeller outside the south.

Here are the key groups where Rockefeller is running substantially better than Nixon today, when their percentages are compared with those for Humphrey, the Democratic front runner in the delegate count:

— Outside the south, Rockefeller runs eight points stronger than Nixon against Humphrey.

— Among independents, Rockefeller enjoys a 16-point spread over Nixon; among Democrats, his point spread over Nixon goes to 17.

— Among big-city residents, Rockefeller does eight points better than Nixon against Humphrey. And among suburban voters, his vote-spread soars to 18 per cent.

— Among younger voters, under 35 years of age, Rockefeller is ahead by 12.

— With the college-educated, the New York governor's advantage is 14.

— Among Jewish voters, Rockefeller shows an 18-point spread.

— Among union members, the New York governor is running ahead by 10.

— Among Negroes, the Rockefeller lead is 16.

All of these groups must be listed as among the most independent voting parts of the electorate in 1968. In the case of independents, young people and the college-educated, Rockefeller is making much the same kind of appeal that McCarthy evokes when running as a Democrat.

Huge blocs In demonstrating that he can penetrate the big-city and suburban vote better than Nixon, Rockefeller has moved toward documenting his claim that he will run stronger with the pivotal Northern industrial vote, with its huge blocs of electoral votes.

Nevertheless, Nixon is not without his own pockets of support. Here are areas where Nixon can boast a relative advantage over Rockefeller in their respective showing against Humphrey:

— Among Republicans, Nixon's margin is a sizable 22 per cent ahead of Rockefeller.

— In the south, Nixon runs 11 points better than Rockefeller, although trailing Wallace by 10.

— Among small-town residents, Nixon's point spread is nine.

— Among voters 50 years of age and older, Nixon's spread is six.

WHO RUNS BETTER AGAINST HHH?

Rockefeller Over Nixon	Per Cent
Nationwide	Plus 5
Suburban voters	Plus 18
Jewish voters	Plus 18
Democrats	Plus 17
Independents	Plus 16
Negro voters	Plus 16
College education	Plus 14
Under 35 years of age	Plus 12
Union members	Plus 10
Big cities	Plus 8
Outside South	Plus 8

Nixon Over Rockefeller

	Per Cent
Republicans	Plus 22
South	Plus 11
Small-town voters	Plus 9
50 years of age or over	Plus 6
Rural	Plus 1

The areas of Nixon strength are much narrower in their election potential than is the Rockefeller case.

For example, while Nixon does much better in holding the normal GOP rank and file, Republicans are a minority of 29 per cent in the electorate as a whole.

In the pivotal industrial states of the north, the small-town vote where Nixon has his strength is outweighed by the combined big-city and suburban vote where Rockefeller runs ahead.

Here are the latest results of Rockefeller vs. Wallace and his two leading Democratic opponents:

TRIAL HEATS

	Mid-July	Mid-June
Per Cent	Per Cent	Per Cent
Rockefeller-Humphrey-Wallace
Rockefeller	37	36
Humphrey	34	40
Wallace	19	15

This latest Harris Survey was conducted in the field from July 8 through July 14. Interviews were conducted with a national probability cross section of 2,012 households. These results are based on the replies of 1,568 voters who were judged to be representative after preliminary screening.

The Harris Survey will return to the field for another national reading just before the Republican National Convention in Miami on Aug. 5.

The Scott Report

Czechs look toward U.S.

WASHINGTON — Czechoslovakian exiles believe the United States is missing the greatest opportunity since the end of World War II to help the people of that communist-ruled country regain their freedom.

Instead of the U.S. adopting a "hands off policy" as indicated by Secretary of State Rusk, these anti-communist refugees want President Johnson to take the diplomatic initiative to put real meaning in this year's "Captive Nation's Week."

As a starter, the Czech exiles are urging the president to call on the new Czechoslovakian regime to extend its "liberalization program" to include full religious and political freedom for its people.

Under the exiles proposal, the president would challenge Prague to grant visas to hundreds of American and Western European clergymen to meet with religious leaders there to discuss religious freedom.

Pressure on policy By bringing pressure for an "open door" policy, the exiles point out, the president could force a test of Prague's highly publicized "liberalization program" to determine if it was being launched for the benefit of the people or just to save communist control in that country. What is happening in Czechoslovakia is best explained by secret information turned over to the Central Intelligence Agency by Maj. General Jan Sejna, the high-ranking Czechoslovak Army officer who defected to the U.S. earlier this year.

In more than four months of talking, General Sejna has told the CIA all he knows about Czech, Russian, and Warsaw pact politico-military secrets — and he knows plenty. The Czechs themselves conceded Sejna has "extensive knowledge" of Soviet-Czechoslovakian military and political relations.

Trojan horse General Sejna's intriguing story, told in advance of today's "big show" in Czechoslovakia, gives the following account of events unfolding in Prague, Moscow, and the other Soviet Bloc Capitals:

The tightly controlled "liberalization program" is being staged by Prague, with Moscow's secret guidance and support, to head off what happened in 1956 in Poland and Hungary when people at large rose against the communist party.

For months popular discontent has been on the rise in Czechoslovakia because of rising prices and sagging economic conditions. In many areas, the communist-run economy has completely broken down.

Popular discontent This economic deterioration made changes absolutely necessary if the communist system was to survive in Czechoslovakia without the use of military force from the Soviet Union.

At several high-level meetings in the Kremlin late in 1967, Moscow and Prague communist leaders determined that massive dollar credits and trade from the West, especially the U.S., was needed to bolster the sagging economy and stem unrest in Czechoslovakia.

As part of their covert program to obtain this massive western aid, Moscow and Prague decided that the Czechoslovakian government would need a new image, especially for the American taxpayer who will foot most of the bill.

Under the personal guidance of Soviet Party boss Brezhnev, one of his closest comrades, Alexander Dubcek, was elevated in a bloodless coup to First Secretary of the Czechoslovakia Communist Party and the real position of power in that country.

Markin time

There cannot be a self-made man; A fact, most all of us admit. Although he does the best he can, He would be dead, if God should quit.

With money, we don't mind the cost. Most any wish we satisfy. We should be sure we have not lost Some qualities we cannot buy.

Just Between Us—

By Bobby Westbrook

My vacation was perfect, at least mentally speaking. Much of the urgency goes out of your life when you don't have to watch the clock (as it turned out we didn't have one to watch since Nancy and I had each counted on the other to have one) and if you don't read a newspaper or listen to the radio or television.

Amazing enough, the world situation doesn't seem to have changed perceptibly even without my eagle eye to keep it in bounds. Physically my vacation was perfect, too. Temperatures in the 90's are just what I need for standing waist deep in 72 degree sea water watching the grandchildren riding the child-sized breakers.

However, it may be a little hard to demonstrate my sense of well-being. The deep tan I acquired so pleasantly and so unconsciously is beginning to flake off which gives a rather leoprotic effect.

Then I had the humiliating experience of falling off a bicycle—and at my age it's more than humiliating, it's ridiculous. With Peter riding in the bumper seat I was peddling along like a breeze on the boardwalk until we ran into a traffic jam and a youngster on a Spyder bike cut in front of me.

Mindful of the baby in back, I spilled but kept him from falling, thus ending up with a black and blue knee, a scraped ankle and a sprained thumb. Watching my painful progress in and out of the surf, that afternoon Nancy delivered the final insult: "Next time, Mother, you'd better ask for a three-wheeler."

And next time the women golfers from York come to the Poconos they'd better buy their bus driver a map. They came by way of Easton and got to Glen Brook an hour and a half late.

Everybody seemed to have a wonderful time anyway, and the only casualties were the husbands of Glen Brook members who had a very late dinner hour Monday night.

While I was waiting for the golfers to come in, a chipmunk came calmly through what used to be the front parlor at the club. When I told John Krieg, he was just as calm matter-of-factly as the chipmunk: "That's all right," said John, "he's a member."

Mr. and Mrs. Barry Weiss (Lawrence Studio)

Miss Denise Felker, Barry Weiss wed

STROUDSBURG — Miss Denise Felker and Barry Weiss were married in the First Presbyterian Church of Stroudsburg in a 3 p.m. ceremony performed by Rev. William Giles.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Florna Felker of Stroudsburg and of Steward Felker of Catsauqua. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Imogene Weiss of Dushkill.

Given in marriage by her cousin, Leon Warner, the bride wore a dress of sat-peau lined in Irish linen sheer with scoop neckline and long pointed sleeves. The princess bodice topped an A-line skirt, trimmed in corded rosepoint appliques. The chapel train was also applied with the same motifs, and was attached at the shoulders with Dior bows.

Her headpiece of petal points and a bow held her tiered bouffant veil of nylon tulle. She carried a Bible with a corsage of white roses and baby's breath and threw a corsage of white pompons.

Mrs. Vicki Smith of 501 Thomas St., Stroudsburg was matron of honor and Miss Dianne Widdow of Delaware Water Gap was maid of honor. They both wore princess floor-length gowns of imported pique in aqua with elbow sleeves, mandarin necklines of daisies and velvet beading. The back panel was also edged in matching beading.

The bridesmaids, Miss Anita Kotoris, Miss Rita Stengel and Miss Brenda Weiss also wore gowns of imported aqua pique with gondola necklines, A-line skirts and satin Dior bows on the bodice. The draped back panel was attached with buttons.

They all carried cascade of deep pink asters and baby's breath.

Jacqueline Sue Warner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leon Warner, was flower girl and carried a basket of deep pink asters and baby's breath.

Bruce Warner, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Warner, was ring bearer.

Philip Treible of 728 Ann St., Stroudsburg was best man. Ushers were Alfred Onken, Michael Chaplin and Wayne Ward.

Musical background for the wedding featured Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wolbert who sang "You'll Never Walk Alone," "How Great Thou Art" and "The Lord's Prayer." The church was decorated with two altar arrangements of gladiola and white pompons and a white aisle runner.

A reception for 400 guests was held at Bushkill Falls Lodge. Music was furnished by Fran Burne of Wilkes-Barre.

After a honeymoon in Atlantic City, the newlyweds will travel to the Ozarks in Missouri where they will make their home in Tarkio, Mo. Mr. Weiss is attending Tarkio College and will graduate as a secondary teacher in anthropology. He was graduated from Judson High School in Arizona.

His bride is a graduate of Stroudsburg High School and East Stroudsburg State College, and was a secondary mathematics teacher and a Peace Corps volunteer.

Sunny Mountain Boys here for Aug. hospital benefit

EAST STROUDSBURG — Noted song writer, singer, and guitarist, Jimmy Martin will bring his Sunny Mountain Boys with their Good 'N' Country Show, to the Poconos on Aug. 24 for the Second Annual County and Western Music Festival.

The festival, for the benefit of the General Hospital of Monroe County, will be held at Koehler Field House at East Stroudsburg State College with two three-hour shows, one at 2 and one at 8 p.m.

The Sunny Mountain Boys will be one of six bands to provide entertainment for the festival. Refreshments will be available. Advance tickets at reduced prices are now on sale at drug stores in both towns, as well as at Sleep's Music Store, Klingel's Cleaners and the Hospitality Shop at the hospital.

Martin became a well-known country music personality when he appeared at the Grand Ole Opry in Nashville, Tenn., with Bill Monroe. In 1953 he organized his own group and was immediately signed to a long term contract to appear on the big WJR Barn Dance in Detroit. With his Decca records gain-

Repps mark 52 wedding anniversary

STROUDSBURG — Mr. and Mrs. Alfred H. Repp celebrated their 52nd wedding anniversary last week at their home on Phillips St., Stroudsburg.

The couple was married in Philadelphia on July 19, 1916, by Rev. Henry Frankland, who in the early years of his ministry preached at the Cherry Valley Methodist Church.

The Repps later moved to Stroudsburg where Mr. Repp was a Chrysler automobile dealer and later a jobber for Firestone Tires until his retirement in 1957.

Among the gifts they received from relatives and neighbors was a color television set. Guests included Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lynn, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Stutter, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Walker and Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Rhodes.

Adrienne Hughes, William H. Hay wed

FLUSHING, L.I. — William H. Hay III, son of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Hay II of Spring St., East Stroudsburg, was married to Adrienne Hughes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James F. Hughes of Flushing, N.Y., on June 29 at Holy Family Church in Flushing, N.Y.

The nuptial mass was celebrated by Father Condon who returned to his old parish for the occasion.

A reception was held for 125 guests at Antun's in Jamaica, N.Y.

The bride's gown was of silk organza appliqued with imported Swiss daisies. The A-line gown had bell-shaped sleeves and a boat neckline.

Earns award

Ellen M. Katz, a junior in the department of dramatic arts of Richmond Professional Institute, Va., received "Best Femal Technician" award for her outstanding contribution in stagelighting, lighting design and stage managing. She is the daughter of Edward M. Katz of Stroudsburg.

The detachable train was of silk organza with daisy appliques. A silk organza bow held her cathedral-length veil of illusion. She carried a bouquet of daisies and gladioli.

Maid of honor was Andrea Prechanis, with Karen Trainer or as matron of honor and Mary Beth Hughes and Helaine Hughes as bridesmaids.

They wore A-line gowns with long puffed sleeves of different colors in white dotted swiss trimmed with matching grosgrain ribbon. They wore natural flower wreaths in their hair and carried old-fashioned bouquets with matching grosgrain streamers.

Allen Hecht of East Stroudsburg was best man. Ushers were Lester Ray of Cherry Valley and David Cortright and Michael Boushell of East Stroudsburg.

The bride's mother wore a dress of powder blue organza with white embroidery. The bridegroom's mother wore a dress of pink bonded crepe with matching accessories.

The bridegroom was graduated from East Stroudsburg High School in 1964 and was in his junior year at East Stroudsburg State College when he entered the service. He is presently serving with the Combat Engineers in Hanau, Germany.

His bride was graduated from East Stroudsburg State College in June, 1968, with a B.S. in physical education. She will join her husband overseas in September and they will reside in Hanau, Germany, until the end of his tour of duty.

Recuperating

EAST STROUDSBURG — Phyllis Pugh who underwent open heart surgery in Philadelphia is now recuperating at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Pugh, Wayne St., East Stroudsburg.

Reforms approved

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP) — The Roman Catholic hierarchy in two of Brazil's richest agricultural states, Rio Grande do Sul and Santa Catarina, has petitioned President Arthur da Costa e Silva to start massive land redistribution projects and other agrarian reforms leading to a strong rural middle class.

Opening lead—king of spades.
The toughest slams to reach are those where you lack the high cards ordinarily required for a slam but have the distributional values that produce twelve tricks.

Here is an exceptional case where North-South arrived at a slam and made it with only 24 high-card points and limited distributional strength.

They were playing a convention by which an unusual jump bid in a suit showed a singleton of that suit. Of course, there are relatively few hands dealt where such a convention can be put to good use, but in the rare cases that do occur the singleton-showing jump bid can be very effective in reaching a good slam or avoiding a poo one.

South had a minimum opening and game seemed remote after North had passed as dealer. But the picture changed considerably after West overcalled his diamond bid with a spade and North jumped to three spades.

The jump cuebid indicated precisely a singleton spade, excellent diamond support, and good values on the side (limited of course by North's initial pass).

The fact that his side had no spade losers improved South's hand considerably. He realized that not only game but slam was a possibility, so he cuebid four spades.

This showed the ace of spades, good trumps, a full opening bid, and willingness to contract for a slam if North was so minded. Had South been interested in game only, he would have bid three notrump four diamonds, or five diamonds, depending on his hand.

North was pleased to accept the invitation by jumping to six diamonds, which South easily made when West, as expected, showed up with the ace of clubs. North reasoned it was next to impossible for him to have a better hand after passing originally and that he therefore could not reject the challenge with first or second round control of every suit.

Two attend Water Gap hearing

DELAWARE WATER GAP — Only two residents turned out Monday to a public hearing in Delaware Water Gap on the borough's proposed subdivision regulations ordinance.

Stephen Matos, council president, said he was concerned with the lack of interest among the residents of Delaware Water Gap.

He added that many residents feel the subdivision regulations do not directly affect them.

The ordinance regulates the subdivision of land and spells out the necessary procedures for gaining approval of plans and plots submitted to the borough.

It provides standards for the design of streets, lots, easements and other improvements, and it also outlines plans for administration of the law and enumerates penalties for violations.

Matos said the council will probably enact the ordinance at its regular meeting on Aug. 5.

He said provisions of the ordinance will probably be most helpful in the next decade when the impact of the Tocks Island projects will be felt in the borough.

Family seeks 'Princess'

EAST STROUDSBURG — An East Stroudsburg family thinks someone broke into their home Monday night or Tuesday morning and stole their German sheppard dog, "Princess."

Blanche Schoppa, 376 Chestnut St., said several boards were removed from the back of the house.

The dog has a license number 2457. East Stroudsburg police have been asked to look out for the missing "Princess."

Penny supper set Friday

EAST STROUDSBURG — The Junior and Senior Youth Fellowships of the East Stroudsburg Methodist Church will sponsor a penny supper on Friday, from 5 to 6:30 p.m. in the church dining room.

The menu will be a hot weather variety of salads, cold meats, barbecued chicken and home prepared vegetables and deserts.

The supper is an endeavor on the part of the young people to raise funds to send some of their groups to "Institute" at the Pocono Plateau Christian Association.

The public is invited to attend.

Driver hits parked cars

EAST STROUDSBURG — Two cars owned by national guardsmen attending drill Sunday in East Stroudsburg were sideswiped when they were parked on Brown Street.

A car driven by Rosetta Lee, 18, of East Stroudsburg R.D. 3, struck the parked cars of Edmund C. Roberts, 24, 774 Market St., Bangor, and Robert H. Rutan, 19, Butler St., Easton, East Stroudsburg Police said.

There were no injuries, police said.

Miss Lee told police that she turned her head to listen to her sister, who was talking, and the car ran off the road.

Glasses cause accident

STROUDSBURG — An East Stroudsburg woman driving on Interstate Rt. 80 dropped her sunglasses Monday and as she turned to pick them up her car crashed.

Stroudsburg Borough Police investigated the accident at 7:30 p.m. and reported no injuries.

The driver was Leslie Jacobs of 149 Analomink Street. With her at time of accident was Leslie Scheinbaum of Star Rt., Stroudsburg.

Police said the driver was traveling north on Rt. 80 when she had some trouble with her sunglasses. She knocked them off and while reaching for them lost control of her car. The car left the highway and rolled on its side.

Several passing motorists stopped and righted the vehicle which was driven away after police investigated the incident.

Judge Fred W. Davis, who is officially retired, bones up on some law in his courthouse office. Why? Because the judge is still trying cases.

'Retired' judge still works hard

By ELLIOT BROWN
Pocono Record Reporter

STROUDSBURG — If one can consider 21 weeks and three days on the bench in eight cities scattered across the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania retirement, perhaps "retired" President Judge Fred W. Davis is.

After all, the 71-year-old jurist "ended his 22-year career" at the end of the December term of court, over six months ago. At least, according to Judge Davis, that's the opinion of "hundreds of people to whom I am tired of explaining my real situation."

Actually, this is far from the case (no pun intended). As long as a judge wants to continue his duties, and the Pennsylvania Supreme Court wants and needs him, he can.

Article 5, Section 15 of the Pennsylvania Constitution, passed Nov. 2, 1965, states "The Chief Justice of the Supreme Court may designate and assign former judges, learned in law, who are willing so to do, who have served at least one term and who have not been defeated for re-election, to the office of judge of any court of record, to temporarily sit in the court of any judicial district for the disposal of business under such circumstances and subject to such qualifications and conditions as the General Assembly may prescribe."

This is where Judge Davis comes in. Prior to 1965, he said, a judge who retired found himself simply a lawyer again. But no longer. In fact, a judge who retires before his term has ended (Judge Davis did not) is responsible for the rest of his term to the best of his ability, despite his retirement.

Since January, the judge has spent a week in Easton, five weeks in Scranton, seven weeks in Philadelphia, four weeks in Pittsburgh, four weeks in Norristown, one day in Lebanon, one day in Millford, and a day here in Stroudsburg. Obviously, he goes where he is needed. The judge's compensation is $75 a day and ten cents a mile for transportation. But out of that, he must pay his own hotel bill, food and whatever other expenses he incurs. August will find Judge Davis in Philadelphia.

"Any judge who needs help can ask the Supreme Court to assign someone," Judge Davis said, "and I'm willing to go, they can assign me." Even while President Judge, if his work was done here he could have been assigned to help elsewhere, the Judge noted.

But what sort of retirement is this, not only to do the work of a judge, but to do all that traveling along with it?

"I enjoy this," Judge Davis said. "I'm going back into counties where I see old friends and old acquaintances, and also meet new lawyers. It's like going back for a visit."

He added that traveling like this, he gets more trial work which "I like to do best. When I was here, a lot of the job was desk work. With trial work, I'm doing the thing I like best." For example, his four weeks in Pittsburgh were entirely criminal cases, and his seven weeks in Philadelphia all civil.

Besides, the Judge does have more time for rest and relaxation, now that whether he serves is up to him. "I do a bit of horseback riding and gardening around the house," he said, "and try to take it a bit easy."

Judge Davis said he took the month of July off (except for one opinion on the Lake Naomi Club liquor license "which was pending and they wanted to get out"), plus a few scattered weeks since January.

And perhaps most important, the judge is happy that he is able to stay active. "I like it," he said, "as long as my health is good and the situation at home is alright, I like to work and want to continue."

As for the future, "What the future holds, nobody knows. As long as I have my health, I will continue to serve. Probably as I grow older, I will do less of it. But as of now, I'm doing what I like."

Workers increase 4,200

STROUDSBURG — Total employment in the Stroudsburg Labor Market Area, has increased by 4,200 workers above the 21,600 employed during mid-April.

The current work force as of June is estimated at 25,200. Employment gains were recorded in all four of the major segments of employment.

According to the Bureau of Employment Security, Department of Labor and Industry, preliminary estimates show that the current total employment is 1,200 above last year's figure of 24,000 workers.

Nonmanufacturing employment, estimated at 16,500, increased by 3,400 workers above the mid-April of 13,100. This is due primarily to seasonal gains of 2,900 in services and 200 in construction.

Transportation and public utilities was up by 100 workers, wholesale and retail trades was up 100 and government experienced a gain of 100.

Manufacturing employment showed a net gain of 100 workers to bring its total to 5,400. The self-employed, unpaid family and domestic workers group, 2,700, was seasonally up by 600 and farm employment currently placed at 600 recorded a seasonal gain of 100 workers during the past two months.

Total unemployment in the area is currently estimated at 400, an increase of 100 persons since mid-April. Despite the gain in area employment, unemployment was up due chiefly to the increased number of new entrants and summer workers seeking jobs in the local labor market area.

The local Employment Service Office continues to list the need for workers in year-round, long-season, and short-season hotels.

Currently the primary needs include workers for the following occupations: specialty cooks, chefs, pantrymen, bakers and butchers.

Stroud firemen hold picnic

STROUDSBURG — The Stroud Township Firemen and their families, along with the Stowe Fire Company, held their annual picnic Sunday, July 21, at the Knights of Columbus picnic Grove in Stroudsburg.

Mrs. Anna Fritz, Mrs. Mabel Heller and Mrs. Thelma Layton were in charge of the entertainment for both adults and children.

Shopping center planned

Camp, land bought for $460,000

STROUDSBURG — The sale of Pinebrook Conference Center, Stroudsburg, R.D. 3, to the Bible Fellowship Church also included a 60-acre farm across the street from the center. Both properties were owned by Richard Crawford.

The total sale price of the properties was $460,000, according to the Rev. A. L. Seifert, church superintendent.

The Fellowship plans to build a year-round auditorium which will seat 1,000 to 1,500. The auditorium will be designed so that it may be converted into a gymnasium.

In the fall of 1963, the Berean Bible School, presently located in Allentown, will be moved to Pinebrook, with the possibility it will become a liberal arts school.

The first services held by the Bible Fellowship Church at Pinebrook will be on Labor Day. Rev. E. Leslie Miller will be the speaker at the 10:30 a.m. and 7 p.m. services.

Also on Labor Day, services for juveniles will be held at 10:30 a.m. and 7 p.m. with Captain Conrad Jamison, a former New York City police officer, as speaker.

Pinebrook Conference Center was founded in 1932 by the late Percy Crawford, a famous Evangelist. Pinebrook was one of the first bible conference centers in the country for young people.

Crawford also founded Shadowbrook and Mountainbrook, which were bible retreats for children aged 6 to 13.

After Crawford's death in 1960, his second oldest son, Richard, became president of the Pinebrook Board of Directors.

Union accepts PP&L offer, raises won

ALLENTOWN — Employees of Pennsylvania Power and Light Co. in 29 counties in eastern and central Pennsylvania have voted—2,105 to 1,800—to accept a new three-year contract.

The settlement includes the employees in the firm's Stroudsburg office.

The new contract calls for a $23.32-a-week average increase over the next three years.

The new contract affects company employees in this area and it is retroactive to May 27.

Acceptance vote was announced by W. Lloyd Troop of Lancaster, general negotiating chairman for the union.

Security on set tight

Movie's cost skyrockets

By PETE GRADY
Pocono Record Reporter

ECKLEY — Tom Landers who owns and operates the Refowich Theatre in Freeland, Pa., and works at night as a Freeland borough patrolman has been bitten by the movie bug at an early age.

A co-owner in his own independent movie company, he was on the Eckley set of Paramount Picture's "The Molly Maguires" as an extra from opening day in May until last week.

Tuesday, both production units one and two were "closed sets," closed to the public and press. Paramount wants to wrap up the film and put it in the can by the end of this week.

"It's estimated that one day's shooting cost Paramount $90,000. Rain in May and June set back the movie's completion date but July's steady sun has brought the filming back on its time schedule."

Landers said "The Molly Maguires" original budget called for a loose shoestring sum of $4 million. But then the budget was doubled to $8 million when the company decided to switch from black and white to Technicolor and Panovision.

Current estimates have the final production cost in a "Cloud Nine" bracket of $12 million due to initial production lag and Hollywood's perennial devotion to authenticity down to the color, size and texture of the high button shoe era in which the film takes place.

The Molly Maguires was an Irish-American secret society which maintained numerous branches in the anthracite coal regions of Pennsylvania, from 1854 to about 1877.

The evidence he secured led to the arrest, conviction and execution or imprisonment of many of its members.

Sean Connery portrays Jack Kehoe, leader of the Molly Maguires. Richard Harris plays the role of James McParlan which Hollywood plans to change to Jamie McParlan because it sounds a little more Irish—Hollywood Irish.

Samantha Eggar is Mary Raines, who falls in love with Richard Harris.

Samantha will not be caught nude in a bathtub by her abductor as she was in the film, "The Collector." She has too many clothes on in the Molly Maguires, and besides Paramount is striking for authenticity.

And, perhaps an Oscar for Sean Connery, and another Oscar for Martin Ritt, director and maybe even one more Oscar for James Wong Howe, chief cameraman.

In Eckley, which is the only mining village that still looks 100 years old in Pennsylvania, coal operator George Huss owns the 5,000 acre village and tenants pay about $15 a month rent.

When Paramount selected Eckley, it paid Pennsylvania Power and Light $100,000 for removing the utility poles and overhead wires strung over Eckley's half-mile long main street.

Unique for a shoddy, run down mining town in Pennsylvania, Eckley can now boast of underground wiring.

There are no hedges, mail boxes or TV antennas in Eckley. Paramount pulled them up and ripped them down not for progress but again for authenticity.

A $200,000 coal breaker was needed to simulate mining

The name was imported from Ireland, where it was used to designate one of the Ribbon societies that devoted its energies to intimidating and maltreating process servers and agents of landlords.

Its membership was confined to the very lowest classes.

The society's object was to intimidate the Welsh, English and German miners, and with their aid, rid the region of mine superintendents, bosses and police who should make themselves anyway objectionable to the order.

Although the society was taken over by a lawless element, it must be said that gross injustices were meted out on the part of the mine owners to the miners.

In the movie "The Molly Maguires" the town of Eckley is transplanted to an 1870 version of "Betty C," a mining village in which the only store where the miners can buy food and provisions is the company store.

The prices are high and at the end of a month the miner usually wound up owing the company, with his wages taken out of next month's paycheck.

The Molly Maguires grew in strength during the Civil War. By 1875, it completely dominated the coal miners and forced a general strike.

A coal company president sent James McParlan, an Irish Catholic and Pinkerton detective to the mining region in 1873; he joined the order and even became secretary of one of its most notoriously criminal lodges.

The evidence he secured led to the arrest, conviction and execution or imprisonment of many of its members.

Sean Connery portrays Jack Kehoe, leader of the Molly Maguires. Richard Harris plays the role of James McParlan which Hollywood plans to change to Jamie McParlan because it sounds a little more Irish—Hollywood Irish.

operations of that bygone era. Paramount found it necessary to build "a clump" of false buildings in the rear to give the illusion of a full sized village as it once existed.

Weather boards were placed over the exterior of some 100 of Eckley's dwellings. The red houses were then painted a sea green gray. Soft coal was used in stoves to produce rising smoke from the houses' chimneys in certain scenes.

Shades of another now ancient mining picture? 20th Century Fox's "How Green Was My Valley."

Unit two was shooting in Eckley Tuesday. Unit two is not to be confused with Unit one which was shooting in St. John's Valley; that's where all the big stars were, Connery and Harris in an ancient shoot out with the coal company's coal and iron police.

A Unit two woman who dashed ashes of her cigarette every other second on coal slag, sat under an umbrella and seemed to be giving directions to the coal crew and hopper which was sliding up and down the breaker's chute.

A man in a striped sports shirt asked an assistant for another light meter reading.

This reporter had infiltrated the Eckley set. Tom Landers was waiting down on Eckley's main street for me to take some shots of the breaker, the coal hopper and some miner extras in meustaches, black-faced and hair sprayed black.

A security official approached and asked if I had an authorized pass. I could produce neither the authorization or the pass. But the security official was a kind old man, and he let me take some shots of the hopper coming down the slide and some more shots of the miners.

But when it came to infiltrating Unit No. one in St.

Johns, I struck out. I was advised by Landers to go to Paramount's office in Hazleton.

At the office I was told that "the set was closed" by a junior executive by the name of Lennie. I spoke to Lennie about "the freedom of the press" and a few other pressing matters.

Lennie said he would have to consult with David Golding, production chief of the Molly Maguires. The white-haired Golding was lounging in an office in back of Lennie. Lennie went into Mr. Golding's office and closed the door.

Soon Lennie reappeared and said I would have to sign a form releasing Paramount Pictures from "any snake bites and/or any other accidents or injuries which may occur as a result of my presence on the location."

I signed the form and within a half hour arrived on a dirt road near the Nescopeck Creek, Indian for "deep, dark muddy water." About 500 feet down another dirt road Unit one was shooting the "shoot up scene."

I handed the guard the form from Lennie. The guard read the form with a straight face. Then he read it with a funny face. The guard got on the walkie-talkie and said to somebody in Unit 1, "Listen to this, Lennie wrote it up. Three paragraphs, all a beaut. One of them's all about snakes."

The guard said he was sorry. Down the road three women, all carrying boots to ward off those poisonous snakes, complained about one of the six assistant directors all of whom are paid $100 a day by Paramount.

One of the women said, "This short fat little nothing caught us inside as we were coming up to the shooting scene. He told us to get lost."

Well, that's the picture business, girls.

EASTSTROUDSBURG—Allstate Development, Inc., of Liberty, N.Y., has been approved as the developer of a 16-acre tract in the Lincoln Ave. redevelopment project with a high bid of $125,000 or nearly $8,000 an acre.

King Beers, executive director of Monroe County Redevelopment Authority, said Tuesday during an authority session in East Stroudsburg, that only two bids were received for the tract, opened at 1 p.m. Monday.

Bidding as a commercial developer, the New York firm, which had already received tentative approval for its shopping center plan, was challenged by a lone bidder in Pocono Mountains Industries, the industrial arm of the Pocono Mountains Chamber of Commerce.

Bidding on the tract for industrial purposes PMI offered $38,000 or $3,000 per acre.

Beers said that PMI only recently showed interest in the plot and in a letter of last April said that the site would be held for future industrial development, as PMI was pursuing the venture on a "speculative" basis.

Allstate's bid included a check for $6,250, of five per cent in lieu of a performance bond.

The plan submitted by Allstate calls for the construction of a shopping center complex and the development of a 10-acre site to house a department store, supermarket, small stores and a branch bank.

The remaining six acres would be held for future expansion.

The East Stroudsburg Planning and Zoning Commission as well as the borough council have already gone on record as being in favor of the plan submitted by Allstate.

According to Beers, a public hearing must be set on the proposal and government approval must also be received on the plans before final conveyance is completed.

Also, acquisition of an approximate one acre plot owned by the Citizen's Gas Co., must be completed.

He said that the final acquisition report and the budget figures for the project are all subject to government approval if a target date of late September is expected for a public hearing.

He said he expected that final conveyance should take place by the end of October with the New York developer.

It was still uncertain whether Jamestown, a chain department store, would be included in the development.

In other business, Solicitor Lee B. Koehler was authorized to forward a letter to the Redmond Realty Corp., East Stroudsburg, questioning the firm's timetable on plans for development in the project area.

Beers said that a stipulation of the conveyance to Redmond of an 18-acre tract last January makes the provision that development should take place within six months and that to date no visible signs of improvement have been noted.

In a separate matter, Beers reported that all Lincoln avenue property has been cleared except for final litigation on two properties that involved titles still undergoing legal proceedings.

Beers also reported that bids will be opened next Monday for the South Crystal St. project that includes a road widening and other improvements.

He's lucky — Humphrey wins $25,000

CANADENSIS — Harry H. Humphrey of Canadensis, was among the big money winners of the New York State Lottery Monday.

Humphrey has won $25,000. He was notified Friday that he was one of those chosen for the high tier prize. Those in the high tier are eligible for prizes between $1,000 and $100,000.

Humphrey said he has not as yet received the money but winning the prize has made him feel "just great."

The Canadensis man owns and operates a drug store.

Detroit's 8th inning rally gives McLain 19th victory

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Pinch singles by Jim Price and Gates Brown punched across two eighth-inning runs Tuesday night to boost the Detroit Tigers to a 6-4 victory over the Washington Senators and bring Denny McLain his 19th victory of the year.

With the Tigers trailing 4-3, Al Kaline and Bill Freehan reached first on walks off Phil Ortega with one out. Price then batted a single to left to drive the tying run and one out later

Brown, whose pinch hitting record is 10 for 17, looped the tie-breaking hit to right.

Jim Northrup doubled and Kaline singled him across to add an insurance run for the Tigers in the ninth.

McLain bowed out for a pinch hitter in the Detroit eighth inning rally after giving up all four Washington runs and eight hits, but Pat Dobson and Jon Warden preserved his win in relief.

With the Tigers ahead 3-1, the Senators started a three-run sixth-inning rally when Mike Epstein was hit by a pitch and Frank Howard doubled. Successive singles by Ken McMullen, Bernie Allen and Paul Casanova then accounted for the go-ahead runs.

The Tigers tagged starter Camilo Pascual for three first-inning runs on a walk, an error and singles by Kaline and Freehan.

Washington narrowed the margin to 3-1 on Howard's second-inning homer into the upper left field deck—his 28th of the year.

Bases loaded walk breaks tie

Yanks win behind Stan Bahnsen

NEW YORK (UPI)—Frank Fernandez, who struck out his first two times at bat, was walked by Juan Pizarro with the bases loaded and two out in the seventh inning, to force in the tie-breaking run Tuesday night as Stan Bahnsen and the New York Yankees beat the Boston Red Sox 4-1.

Pizarro, arrested less than 72 hours before the game on a drunken disorderly charge in Boston, walked Tom Tresh—who homered in the fifth for the Yankees' first run—to lead the bases and bring up Fernandez.

After getting two strikes on Fernandez, Pizarro threw four straight balls forcing in the run to break the 1-1 tie.

The Yanks added two insurance runs in the eighth as Pizarro suffered his second loss against two victories. Horace Clarke, singled, stole second and scored on a single by Roy White, who had three hits. White went to second on the throw to the plate and scooted home on Mickey Mantle's single.

Bahnsen, who scattered seven hits, boosted his record to 9-6 and would have had a shutout except for an error by Fernandez.

Reggie Smith singled in the seventh and tried to score on a double by Rico Petrocelli. Tresh's relay from White in left field had Smith nailed at the plate but Fernandez dropped the ball, allowing Smith to score.

Twins win nightcap for split

ST. PAUL-MINNEAPOLIS (UPI)—The Minnesota Twins capitalized on California miscues Tuesday night to gain a 3-1 win in the second game of a two-night doubleheader after the Angels won the opener 3-1 on a six-hitter by George Brunet.

All the Twins' runs in the nightcap were unearned and produced through a combination of errors, wild pitches and passed balls.

Vic Davallito and Fregosi accounted for all the runs California needed in the first inning of the opener. Davallito led off with a double, and scored on Fregosi's single.

Reds extend streak on hit by Perez

PITTSBURGH (UPI)—Tony Perez' single, his fifth hit of the game, scored Lee May from third base to start a two-run 12th inning rally and provide the Cincinnati Reds their fifth straight victory, 7-6, over the Pittsburgh Pirates Tuesday night.

Loser Elroy Face, the sixth of seven Pirate pitchers, was the victim of the four-hit inning. May singled with one out and took third on Johnny Bench's fourth single of the night.

Perez' single scored May and Tommy Helms then singled Bench home with the decisive tally.

Gerry Arrigo, fourth Cincinnati pitcher, picked up his sixth victory thanks to the Reds' 20-hit rampage that snapped a three-game Pirate winning streak.

The Pirates scored a run in their half of the 12th when Maury Wills walked, stole second, went to third on Matty Alou's hunt and scored on Willie Stargell's sacrifice fly.

The Pirates tied the game at 5-5 with one out in the ninth inning on a pinch hit homer by Bill Virdon after Jose Pagan walked. It was the first hit and runs batted in for the veteran Virdon since he was restored to the active list from the Pittsburgh coaching ranks.

Boog Powell bats in four

Baltimore regains 2nd place

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Boog Powell drove in four runs with his 16th homer of the year and a double Tuesday night to power the Baltimore Orioles to an 8-6 win over the Cleveland Indians and boost the winners back into sole possession of second place in the American League.

The victory, only the second in 10 meetings with Cleveland this season, was the first major league triumph for reliever John Morris, who pitched to only two batters.

Powell's homer, coming with two on, wiped out a 4-3 Cleveland lead and pinned starter Stan Williams with his fifth loss in 12 decisions. Brooks Robinson's 11th homer, with a man on, accounted for two of the Orioles' three first-inning runs, and a triple by Dave Johnson in the eighth off reliever Eddie Fisher accounted for the Orioles' final run.

Don Buford, who had two hits and scored twice, also played a prominent role in the Oriole attack as he tied a club record with three stolen bases.

Jose Cardenal's two-run homer in the fifth had given the Indians a 4-3 lead and chased starter Wally Bunker. Morris came on to record the last two outs and then left for a pinch-hitter just before Powell's homer.

Maris doubled in the first to drive home Lou Brock and Carl Flood, who had both walked. Orlando Cepeda followed Maris' double with a single and both scored on a triple by Mike Shannon off starter Rick Wise. The fifth run came home on a single by Dick Schofield.

Maris also doubled in the third to score starter Larry Jaster and Brock, who had hit consecutive singles. Brock's single drove in Schofield and Dal Maxvill, who had been walked by reliever Jeff James. Another run came in the second when Cepeda reached second on an error by John Briggs at first and scored on Johnny Edwards' single. Cepeda added the final run in the seventh when he doubled, went to third on a grounder and scoring on Gary Wagner's wild pitch.

The winner was Jaster who allowed 10 hits, including a sixth-inning homer by pinch-hitter Rick Joseph. Jaster, who was relieved by Dick Hughes after the homer, raised his record to 6-5. The loser was Wise, who is now 6-7, and who is 1-6 lifetime against the Red Birds.

Mets HRs destroy Atlanta

ATLANTA (UPI)—Homo runs by Ed Kranepool and Ron Swoboda carried the New York Mets over Atlanta 2-1 Tuesday night, dealing the Braves their fifth consecutive loss.

Kranepool's homer came in the second and Swoboda's in the sixth, two of the eight hits off loser Pat Jarvis.

Tom Seaver worked seven innings, giving up eight hits himself, to pick up the win, his ninth in 15 decisions.

Atlanta picked up its run in the sixth when singles by Tito Francona, Hank Aaron and Joe Torre loaded the bases and Francona scored as Tommie Aaron hit into a double play.

Mike Lum led off the Atlanta eighth with a single, and Seaver was quickly yanked in favor of Cal Koonce. Francona forced Lum at second and Koonce walked Hank Aaron, but got Torre and Tommie Aaron to ground out to end the inning.

Seaver struck out four and walked one.

Hewitt wins opening test

HAVERFORD, Pa. (UPI)—Top-seeded Bob Hewitt and fifth-seeded Ray Moore, both of South Africa, won first round matches Tuesday in the 69th annual Pennsylvania Lawn Tennis Championships at the Merion Cricket Club.

In the women's singles, second-seeded Vicky Rogers, a left-hander from Rye, N.Y., and third-seeded Valerie Ziegenfuss of California won their matches.

Hewitt defeated K. S. Reynolds, Cambridge University, 7-5, 6-4, and Moore won from Rupert Dorey of Oxford University, 6-2, 6-4. The two South Africans arrived Monday night from Düsseldorf where they lost Davis Cup matches to West Germany on Sunday.

Miss Rogers advanced to the fourth round with a 6-4, 6-3 victory over Betty Grubb, Santa Monica, Calif. Miss Ziegenfuss, playing her first match after a first round bye, gained a third round by defeating fellow Californian, Gail Hansen 8-5, 9-2.

In other men's matches, Patricio Cornejo, Chile's No. 1 player, gained a third round by 2-6, 8-6, 6-2, over Colin Stubbs of Australia. Allen Stone, sixth-seeded player from Australia, withstood Tom Gorman, Seattle, 15-13, 12-10. Jim McManus of Berkeley, Calif., scored by 6-0, 6-0 over Lito Alvarez of Argentina.

In women's play, South Africans Maryna Godwin and Laura Roussouw reached the third round. Miss Godwin was extended to 6-1, 4-6, 6-3 by Pam Teeguarden of Los Angeles. Miss Roussouw also won in three sets after fighting off set point at 3-5 in the opening set. She defeated Pixie Lamm of Oakland, Calif., 7-5, 4-6, 6-1.

Ceci Martinez, San Francisco, won a two-hour and 45-minute uphill struggle over Pat Cody of Bell, Calif., 5-7, 7-5, 6-4.

Kristy Pigion, the Wimbledon junior champion from Danville, Calif., scored by 6-4, 6-2 over Pam Richmond, Mission Hills, Kan.

Becky Vest, Jackson, Miss., scored by 6-3, 2-6, 6-1 over Raymond Jones, Annandale, Va. Emily Burrer, San Antonio, Texas defeated Marilyn Aschner, Holliswood, N.Y., 7-5, 6-3.

1st stringer for Jets leaves camp

HEMPSTEAD, N. Y. (UPI)—Dennis Randall, a promising second-year defensive tackle who was promoted to the first string less than 48 hours before, walked out of the New York Jets' training camp Tuesday afternoon.

Randall, a 6-foot-6, 245-pounder from Oklahoma State, had been drafted in the third round by the Jets in 1967 and had played in eight games last year with the American Football League club before an injured knee forced him to undergo surgery. He had been suffering from tendonitis during workouts at the Jet's Hofstra University base.

On Sunday, coach Weeb Ewbank demoted Paul Rochester from the first team for arriving at camp six pounds overweight and inserted Randall in his place.

While the Jets were still out on the field practicing Tuesday afternoon, Randall returned to his room and when he turned in his keys left a note saying: "I'm going home. I'll be back in a few days."

However, a Jets spokesman said, "We're not holding our breath."

Five match par in Shawnee action

SHAWNEE — Match play against par was the tournament of the day Tuesday as the Shawnee Women Golfers Association hosted the York ladies.

Four members of the guest team were even par while Dottie Paukovich of the host team was even. Doris Markham, also of Shawnee, was one down to par.

After matching cards Marie Heister was awarded first and Frances Sutton second. Others even par were Pedic Pedrick and Sandy Christensen.

Low net honors for the day went to Shawnee's Laurie Newcomb with a 76. Gross winners for the local team were Betsey Peeney (A), 83; Katie Cullen (B), 103; and Laura Marrone (C), 113.

Low net and low gross honors for the visitors went to Sandy Christensen, low gross (83) and Barbara Williams, low net (72).

Ruth Kohler from York put her tee shot 10 feet, one inch, from the pin on the 7th hole to take honors.

Putting honors went to Frances Sutton of York (29) and Miss Peeney, Shawnee (29).

Buys out two partners

Pollin sole owner of Bullets

BALTIMORE (UPI)—Abe Pollin, president of the Baltimore Bullets, Tuesday announced he has bought out his two partners and is the sole owner of the National Basketball Association franchise.

The 43-year-old Pollin, for four years the silent partner in the triumvirate of owners, took command with a ringing declaration that he intends to make the cellar dwelling Bullets a winner.

The new owner of the Bullets, a builder, developer, and loan company owner in Washington, D.C., said at a news conference: "The image of the Baltimore Bullets as a losing organization on the court, in the front office, and at the box office, is over. There is no room for pessimism—just optimism. I have a successful business background and I have every intention for this to carry over in the professional basketball field."

Pollin did not disclose the sale price. He said both his partners had received "a very substantial profit" over their original investment.

Earl Foreman, Arnold Heft, and Pollin purchased the Bullets four years ago for a reported $1.1 million dollars. The two other partners were reported to have made a combined profit of more than $300,000.

The new owner said he had bought out his partners because he could not bear to sell the team while it was losing. He said he is not counting on any financial help from any source, but he expressed interest in naming an advisory board of Baltimore men.

Bears offer Pettibon to New Orleans

CHICAGO (UPI)—The Chicago Bears Tuesday offered to trade defensive safety Richie Pettibon to the New Orleans Saints in return for the Saints' No. 1 draft choice next year.

Club president George Halas, Jr. announced the offer. Pettibon earlier had announced his retirement from the Bears due to his business interests in New Orleans, but later said he would play if he could be traded to the Saints.

Halas earlier announced that two players, defensive tackle John Johnson and offensive back Garry Lyle, quit camp and waivers were asked on six others to cut the squad from 76 to 67.

Knicks open camp Sept. 11

NEW YORK (UPI)—The New York Knickerbockers will set up their National Basketball Association training headquarters at the State University of New York in Farmingdale, N.Y., this year, the club announced Monday.

Rookies will report to coach Red Holzman on Wednesday, Sept. 11, with the veterans scheduled to check in on Monday, Sept. 16.

The Knicks are scheduled to remain at Farmingdale through Sept. 27, after which they will embark on an exhibition tour which opens at Madison Square Garden against the United States Olympic team on Saturday night, Sept. 28.

Donald C. Lillis dies; Jets president for 2 months

WESTERLY, R. I. (UPI)—Donald C. Lillis, millionaire sportsman and president of the New York Jets for exactly two months, died Tuesday, of heart trouble at the age of 66.

The publicity-shy entrepreneur, one of the original owners of the Jets, passed away at Westerly Hospital at approximately 10 a.m. EDT Tuesday after entering the hospital last Saturday. Doctors said he had been ill for some time.

He is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Helen Springborn of Pelham Manor, N.Y.; a sister, Mrs. Dorothy Williams of Pinellas Park, Fla., and three grandchildren.

A memorial service will be held Friday at 10 a.m. at the Christ Church, Corner Shaw Rd. and Pelhamdale Ave., Pelham Manor. Contributions in lieu of flowers are requested to be sent to either the heart association or the Lillis Foundation.

Lillis became president of the Jets on May 23 when he and three partners bought out the fifth partner, David A. "Sonny" Werblin, who had served in the capacity of president of the Jets since the group purchased the New York Titans franchise from the late Harry Wisner in 1963.

The Jets announced Tuesday that the three remaining partners, Townsend Martin, Leon Hess and Phillip Iselin, would meet in the near future to decide upon a new president.

Donald C. Lillis

Lillis, whose main business interest was as a limited partner with the stock brokerage firm of Bear, Stearns and Co., had taken an active interest in the sports world for a number of years.

An avid golfer who journeyed to Scotland every year to play the championship courses, Lillis made his first sports business venture in 1947 when he went into negotiations with Larry S. MacPhail to buy a controlling interest in the New York Yankees.

Lillis and MacPhail took over Bowie Race Track in Baltimore, Md. in 1952 a syndicate headed by MacPhail and Lillis assumed control of Bowie with MacPhail becoming president and Lillis chairman of the board. The two men instituted the massive rebuilding program that resulted in the present facilities and in the spring of 1953, Lillis became Bowie's president.

Ten years later Lillis moved into the American Football League picture as one of Werblin's four "silent partners" in the purchase of the then New York Titans. However, he held a smaller share in the club than either Werblin, Martin, or Hess.

Lillis, who was also the chairman of the board of the National Can Company and a director of Quaker City Life Insurance Co., suddenly became the Jets' chief operating officer when the partners had a falling out this spring.

Werblin failed in an effort to buy out the four others and instead sold out to them when the quartet challenged Werblin's right to run the club alone.

At the time, Werblin was extremely critical of Lillis and the other three partners, remarking in that, "When it (the team) was a failure nobody else came around. You didn't see them in Kansas City when it was 14 below and your feet stuck to the metal floor. But the moment a profit appeared, we were running things by committee."

Montreal loses 1st financial backer

MONTREAL (UPI)—Montreal's unnamed, coachless, and playerless major league baseball franchise lost its first financial backer Tuesday, but may have gained a top-flight general manager.

The team was expected to announce today that John McHale, assistant to Commissioner William D. Eckert and a former general manager and president for the Detroit Tigers and Atlanta Braves, would become the new club's general manager.

However the team's group of financial backers dropped to six when Marc Bougie, a local businessman, bowed out and told reporters, "things just haven't worked out the way I thought they would."

He added that he wished the team's six remaining financial backers luck and hoped "they can bring about a big league baseball team for Montreal."

It was reported the lack of concrete plans for a permanent stadium for the American League team sparked Bougie's decision to move out of the picture. Tentative plans have called for putting a tent-style roof on the currently open-air Autostade on the site of Expo 67, and later to build a domed stadium in the city's east end.

Some sources believe former Boston and Milwaukee baseball owner Lou Perini, who has considerable construction interests in Quebec, might replace Bougie as a director. Perini now is a director of the Atlanta Braves.

City officials still were confident that the team would prove to be more than a pipe dream.

City council executive committee vice chairman Gerry Snyder, probably the team's biggest plugger, insisted that "everything looks positive and promising."

Packers sign Davis, Jeter

GREEN BAY (UPI)—The signing of veterans Willie Davis and Bob Jeter to 1968 contracts was announced Monday by Vince Lombardi, general manager of the Green Bay Packers.

Davis, a defensive end, will be in his 11th season. Jeter, a defensive back, will be in his sixth. Both were members of the United Press International all-National Football League squad last year.

Everyone always said the Packers' Jerry West and Elgin Baylor were the best one-two punch in the business. All the team needed was a little height in the center of that lineup and the other team might never get to see the basketball. Now it's like an outfield of Mays, Clemente and Aaron — or a backfield of Starr, Sayers and Jim Brown. Why bother to keep score?

Before you throw your hat in the air, let me ask you something: If a guy came up to you on a Brooklyn street corner, and, after furtively looking around, flashed a bag of beads at you or a "solid gold brick" and said he'd wait there while you went home and hocked your house and car, would you go for it? If a fellow calls you up and said he had an oil well just about to come in and it was all yours for $50,000, would you dip in the bank's till, figuring you would be able to pay it back as soon as they got enough pails to catch the oil? Supposing your brother-in-law had a "horse that can't lose"?

Well, now, Wilt Chamberlain is not pie-in-the-sky. He's not the Lost Dutchman mine, or mythical gusher in Venezuela. He's a proven performer, a 25,000-point athlete, he can play any end of the court, including the ceiling. Right? Even so, when a guy has been shopped around the league like this guy, it behooves you to look underneath the hood.

Butler Baylor

The only thing Wilt Chamberlain can't do on a basketball court is get along with his fellow players, owners, coaches, fans and writers. That's why the Philadelphia 76ers are putting him out on a "make offer" basis. It's nothing personal with Wilt. It's just that his presence overwhelms everybody within a radius of 15 miles. The rest of the act becomes spear carriers, walk-ons. Everybody else in the scene is a butler.
